Hi Jamie

Thank you for your email.

We would be delighted to provide you with Canadian immigration advice.

As there are several different paths for obtaining Canadian PR, I suggest we set up a telephone meeting to discuss your son's options. I have cc'd my assistant Salma on this email. She will connect with you to set up a mutually convenient meeting time.

As your son's education and work experience impact his eligibility to qualify for Canadian PR, could you please provide us with a copy of his resume in advance of our discussion.

I look forward to speaking with you.

Best regards

Janet

Dear Janet,

We are investment management, audit and tax clients of PwC and our 20+ year client, Prem Watsa's firm, Fairfax also uses your services so you come highly recommended!💎💎

I would like your advice on what the best path would be for a young (28 year old) from the US to get Canadian permanent residency;

1. Set up own company for self employment?
2. Invest $1 million into a Canadian business?
3. Other options?

I have read the Canadian Immigration web information but they indicate the investment approach has been suspended?

Many thanks in advance!

Sincerely,

James Rosenwald

Ps. The 28 year old is my son and is well educated (Stanford Univ BA, University of Southern California Masters in Film Production).
