Dear Family,

Now that I have been a Minister for 9 months and have performed an amazing wedding ceremony, should we discuss setting up the Celebration Church or Church of Global Celebration (CGC)?

I am sure that there would be quite a few members we could count on to join as Founding Church Members.

Love,

Dad

Greetings James B Rosenwald III,

9 months! That's how long you've been a minister. By now you've probably had the chance to perform a wedding ceremony or two, which is no small accomplishment. But did you know your ordination qualifies you to branch out into a variety of other areas, too? That's right – even if you're a marriage aficionado at this point, there are still many aspects of ministerial work left to explore!

Some of our ministers even start their own churches! It can be quite the undertaking, but if you envision yourself leading a congregation, we've got the resources to guide you. An outline of the processes involved in establishing your own congregation is available for free on our website, and our online bookstore offers further literature on the subject. As always, we recommend getting your official ordination documents before moving on to more advanced areas of ministry.

Speaking of advanced areas, have you ever considered performing a baptism? A baptism is a sacred ceremony marking the beginning of a new spiritual journey. ULC ministers are frequently called upon to perform baptisms for people from diverse faith backgrounds, and since there are no specific legal guidelines, these ceremonies can be highly-personalized. Presiding over a baptism on behalf of friends or loved ones can add an irreplaceable sense of intimacy for all involved. If this path interests you, we're pleased to offer this carefully curated Baptism Kit, which includes everything you'll need to perform that special ceremony – from certificates of baptism to anointing oil.

Whether you endeavor to become a spiritual leader in your community or simply to perform a few ceremonies, we remind you ever to abide by our central tenet: do that which is right. As you continue to blaze your own unique path, know that we're always here to help should you have any questions or concerns.

Peace,

Brother Walter
